From the editor.....

This is very late and I am very sorry. I intended to have this out to you before leaving on vacation in July. Then my 11 ½ year old boy, Tripp was diagnosed with chronic kidney disease. He is the boy in my mugshot photo. I scrambled to get him care and to feed him then watched him crash on our drive north. My vacation was spent shuttling my precious boy back and forth to a vet clinic for treatment. When I did have time to work on the magazine, I found it difficult with the limited internet and cell coverage available. I finally looked at the calendar and decided to combine the July & August issue, and to work hard to publish before the end of July. That took a weight off my shoulders. My boy comes first and he needed my energy. I know you all understand because you have, unfortunately, been there.

New this month is a website! The Competitive Canine now has a website all its own.
www.theCompetitiveCanine.com I am open to any and all suggestions to make it better.

In this issue I have arranged all of the very active sports first by state then by date. This will make it easier to find events that appeal to you. Agility is further divided by type of event.

Thank you all for your support! I enjoy making this magazine for you!

TOPICS • Attitude is Everything! The most important thing to me is building the "right" training relationship by building the dog's "want to" attitude BEFORE adding the "have to". • Error-Free Training: I create the finished dog by building on success, not failure. • Balanced, Rewards-Based Training: I have control of the rewards and use them correctly to train and motivate to get the most out of my dog. • Focus on Fundamentals: I continue to focus on the foundational skills that make up the exercises throughout my dog's show career. My Back to the "FUN"damentals Workshop is geared to every level of trainer/dog teams.

Do Your Dogs Work With You?

I've been a licensed real estate broker for twenty years. I've run an office. I've worked for both big box and boutique offices. I finally settled at Sterling Real Estate Partners. Why? The owner breeds and shows Wire-Haired Vizslas. He competes in the field and has aspirations of becoming a judge. He gets me.

In the 20 years I have been selling homes, my dogs have become indispensable coworkers, and not every managing broker gets that fact. Tucker warned me to hurry off when talking to some random guy who wandered up to my truck while previewing a home in the country. Tag accompanied me to console a senior who had made the sad decision to sell her house and move to a retirement home. Truly was in a photo shoot when I was listing a dog kennel and training facility. A dog is always with me when I am walking land with my clients. Not every office I have worked at understands why my dogs are such an essential part of my life and business, but they are.

I have also found that my clients, many of whom are naturally from the dog world, appreciate working with a like-minded broker. Did you just discover herding? Let's look at farms so you can have sheep! Will the HOA let you raise ducks or have agility equipment in the backyard? I'm also good at reimagining space for training, grooming, and other canine needs. I remember walking into a house with a client and seeing how perfect it was for the dogs. It had indoor training space, the ideal room for whelping pups, a spot for a dog bath in the laundry room, and all of this let directly out to the back yard. We started framing an offer before we even knew if the house had bedrooms. Priorities, am I right? Because I share a common interest with my clients, I can visualize their needs much better than the average pet owner. My dogs are my coworkers, which led me to ask my CPA; if I name my dog "Do You Want to Buy a House?" can I write off the entry fees as a business expense every time his name appears in a catalog? I still don't have a clear answer to that one!

*Deep thoughts
from Toke...*

Ma People took us all on a long trip where we saw other people we knew and we went for long walks and got to swim. Something about Portillos too. I don't know what that is but they were pretty excited to go there and they did have good fries! When we got home, I ran through the house barking hello to all the plants, and my toys and then I ran outside and barked hello to the birds and the squirrels! I heard moms talking thing beep. Ma Person said it was from the neighbor welcoming us home. How did they know we were home?

Sincerely, - Toke

10 Things for Now and Later Notebook

By Annette Alfonso

*I imagined, believed and
almost 5 years
later finally achieved!*

Inside this notebook you will find 30 one-line reminders for when you are training and competing with your dog.

There is also plenty of room to write down your own plans, goals and feelings....ha!

I said feelings!

The message in this notebook is for anyone that has felt the up and downs of participating in any sport. The struggle may be real but the support and the solutions are there, we just need to be brave in asking for them and be determined and committed to see them through.

It's available anywhere I am teaching or competing. The best BAT (Book Agent Tina Eastman) also has copies available with her all through the Carolinas and Virginia.

Training in Summer Heat

by Kata Miller

During the Summer months whether or not you hunt with your dog, training can be a little tricky. If you hunt with them during the season, you must keep them in shape during the Summer months. But how do you keep them safe on hot days? Here are some tips to help you keep your dog in shape, well trained and most of all SAFE!

TRAINING TIPS

1. Beat the Heat!

Train early in the morning! This doesn't mean you have to get up at the crack of dawn every single morning. Schedule your morning training for 2-3 times a week. Work on the field and then do some water work.

Train later in the day. As the Sun starts to go down and as it gets cooler, go out with your dog to work on obedience, heel, a couple of retrieves and steadiness.

Walking your dog is great exercise but on hot days be cautious of the hot pavement. Walk your dog early in the morning.

2. Water work is for the morning!

Water can also heat up and you don't want to send your dog in to a hot tub. You want your dog to go in and out of the water to keep them cool so only throw 50 yards retrieves.

3. Keep training sessions short!

4. Have water for you and your dog at all times! Freeze water bottles if you can't take a cooler with you.

5. Train indoors!

SAFETY MATTERS

1. Dehydration signs

- Loss of appetite
- Panting
- Dry nose
- Thick, pasty saliva
- Sunken eyes

2. Heatstroke signs

Watching for signs of heatstroke can save your pups life!

- Long tongue
- Heavy panting
- Drooling
- Visibly having hard time cooling themselves off
- Vomiting
- Diarrhea

HOW TO TREAT HEAT STORKE?

If you see any of these signs, move your dog immediately to a shaded area.

Immediately pour cool (NOT COLD!!!) water over your dog and allow the dog to drink small amounts of cool water. Slowly continue pouring cool water over your dog until breathing starts to settle but not too much or too fast that they start shivering.

Pedialyte is safe for dogs so keep a bottle with you to give an extra boost of electrolytes for your dog in case of emergency.

If you have to drive to your training grounds, under no circumstances should you put your wet dog in a wire crate in your car!!!! EVER!!!! They will die in no time!

Before crating your dog, make sure they are mostly dry and then put them in plastic crates such as Gunner Kennels or Ruff Land Kennels are safer. Make sure to attach a fan to their crates and a bucket of water!

!!!!!!! SNAKES !!!!!!!

How to identify a venomous snake?

- Big Broad triangle head
- Elliptical pupils like a cat
- Rattling tail

Venomous water snake will let its entire body float along the water!

Non-venomous snakes have: - Round eyes

Non-venomous water snakes will swim through the water with just its head poking above the surface.

But most of all, have fun with your buddy!

“Judging Resources - a Simple Click Away!”

Random Little Tidbits #92

Back in the day (1950s-1980s) there were very few resources available to gain knowledge in one's journey to become an obedience judge. This Tidbit will give you all sorts of information available just for the looking, asking or clicking! One needs to apply themselves as in any other endeavor. Researching today is super easy compared to our past; learn to be resourceful and use it!

Our Sport always needs new judges to come along, so give it some serious consideration to giving back the sport you have enjoyed over the years. Then go beyond that and try your hand at a few matches or run-throughs. Talk to judges before and after and enjoy the learning process. They were once where you are at now and are a valuable resource for a wealth of information.

**Share away** to your page, Group or club's newsletters. One never knows who they may reach that may be interested, or start the thinking process of giving back as a judge.

Log on to:

<https://saintbernardarchive.com/library/> for viewing #92, plus all the other Dog-Talk and Tidbits articles. May I suggest to take along your favorite beverage as you may be there for a while!

Enjoy,
John Cox
AKC Obedience Judge

Chronic Renal Failure

by Susan Young

On July 3rd my wonderful, silly, loving senior boy Tripp was diagnosed with Chronic Kidney Disease. He had missed two meals over the previous weekend, and if you own a golden retriever, that's all it takes to send you to the vet for tests. Our family vet worked us in and said there was no way this was a sick dog - until he got the lab work back. Creatinine levels should be between 0.5 - 1.8 mg/dL and Tripps was 6.0. His BUN should have been between 7 and 27 mg/dL and his was 111.8. I had no idea what this meant except it was too high.

According to Google: "Creatinine is a waste product made by your muscles as part of regular, everyday activity. Normally, your kidneys filter creatinine from your blood and send it out of the body in your urine. If there is a problem with your kidneys, creatinine can build up in the blood and less will be released in urine." and "A blood urea nitrogen (BUN) test measures the amount of urea nitrogen found in your blood. Urea nitrogen is a waste product made when your liver breaks down protein. It's carried in your blood, filtered out by your kidneys, and removed from your body in your urine."

In other words, his kidneys were not functioning. Tripp's creatinine levels spiked to 10.2 and his BUN to 122 while traveling on vacation a few days later. I got him to a local vet who did five days of IV therapy, flushing his kidneys. This brought his levels back down to 4.6 and 61. Not great, but better. Diet is the hardest part of dealing with a dog with kidney disease. This disease upsets their tummy, screws with their sense of smell, and can cause sores in their mouth. Many people shared kidney diets with me, and I tried to cook for my dear boy, but seriously, I barely cook for myself. It didn't go well. Thankfully we have other options. Royal Canin and Hills both make kidney diets. Canine Caviar has a "Special Needs" kibble that fits right in the suggested requirements of a low protein diet with Phosphorous at less than 0.5%. My Perfect Pet has a pork and a lamb "fresh food" mix low in Phosphorous. I almost cried when I discovered that Evanger's lists phosphorous levels on the back of their can. Very few companies do so; this is so important to know for KD dogs. My Tripp is now eating well because I can offer him a variety of flavors that keep him interested. Hopefully, he will continue to improve, and I will have him for a long time. He is truly the sweetest dog you will ever meet.
